COOK COUNTY EXTENDING WOLF ROAD

Wolf Road To Be Extended North of 143rd as PWA Project

The completion of Wolf Road from 143rd Street in Orland Township north to Ford Road in Palos Township near the drainage canal has been announced the past week by the Cook county highway officials. The extension of Wolf Road is a part of the $6,500,000.00 Cook County road program pushed by P. W. A. Just how soon work will be started on the Wolf Road has not been announced, but presumably it will be begun during the winter months or next spring. Then Wolf road will be carried across the canal to connect up with the paving already laid at Western Springs. This has not been started but most likely this will be done in the near future. When this link is complete to Western Springs, Wolf Road will be paved throughout Cook county to Wheeling. The only gap remaining in Will County in Wolf Road is from the Lincoln highway south to route 45 in Green Garden township. Efforts will be made this winter to have the Illinois State Legislature place this strip of road on the secondary road program of the state for 1937. When this gap is completed and the necessary connections made in Cook county Wolf Road will be a good paved highway serving as an outer belt line to all main roads leading into Chicago. This was planned by the regular Wolf Road Boosters 8 years ago. Wolf Road will take a real share of traffic from other congested highways and will make it possible for motor traffic to reach various parts of Chicago or Cook county without using the more heavily travelled and sometimes narrower paved highways. Thus the dream of Wolf Road Boosters will eventually become a reality and Wolf Road will be one of the most important paved highways in Will and Cook county. Other roads on the huge Cook county road program of local interest are: Harlem avenue, Sauk Trail to Lincoln Highway, Sauk Trail, Harlem avenue to Crawford avenue, 131st street, Will-Cook road to Keane avenue, grading and drainage, 135th St., Keane Avenue to Harlem Avenue paving, Roberts Road, 111th St., to 95th St. paving. Two highways in the vicinity of Tinley Park to be improved with paving are Oak Forest avenue from Oak Park avenue to 167th St., 143rd St. from Oak Park avenue to Midlothian Turnpike, paving.

Some of the tremendous quantity of material involved in the Cook County road building program is shown by reports of PWA engineers. The construction company carried 322 barrels of cement, enough to fill 811 freight cars. A train 133 miles long with 17,540 40-ton hopper cars would be required if all the sand and gravel used were transported at one time. Enough sewers and pipe were installed to provide a drainage system for a city of 150,000 people. 16 tank cars of Bituminous material will have been used when the program is completed. Approximately 16.5 miles of side walks were laid and in addition thousands of trees and tons of grass seed were used on the parkways of the city streets, the park drives and on the shoulders of all the new roads. In September the amount of the program completed was from 53 to 70 per cent, and equally rapid progress will be made in the next 2 months. The road construction is in both urban and country sections of the county. On the basis of standard 20 ft. width paving, there will be 57.24 miles of concrete paving and 75.55 miles of Bituminous roads built. The total of 132.79 miles is equivalent to a road from Chicago to Peoria or sufficient to meet the needs of a city of 200,000 people.

RAYMOND SPIESS DIES AFTER A BRIEF ILLNESS

Raymond Spiess, aged 13 years and 2 days, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Spiess of Green Garden died at Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, on Friday evening, October 9, after undergoing an appendicitis operation on Wednesday, October 7. Raymond was born in Orland Township, October 7, 1923, and moved to Green Garden with his parents in January, 1926. He was a member of Rev. G. S. Gerhold's Confirmation class at St. Peter's Evangelical church, Frankfort. Surviving are his parents and three grandparents. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from his home to the St. Peter's Evangelical church with Rev. G. S. Gerhold officiating. Interment at St. John's cemetery in Mokena.

Oct. 27th Last Day For Registration

Registration of voters in Will County began October 13 on which a registration of electors is compiled in the various precincts. Another meeting of the judges of election in each of the precincts in the county will be held October 27 to revise the register and make any additions that come to their attention. All those young voters who have reached their 21st birthday and who will cast their first vote, November 3 should make an effort to have their names registered in the precinct in which they live. In case that it is not convenient for the voter to register on the dates mentioned then the voter should get in touch with their supervisor, judge of election or the office of County Clerk stating that they wish to be registered.

Absent voters may now file application for ballot in county clerk's office. The last day for absent voters to file application for ballot by mail is October 29. October 31st is the last day for absent voters to apply for a ballot in person. The office of the county clerk will be glad to furnish any necessary information to voters pertaining to absent electors. Poll books containing the names of the voters registered will be open for inspection to the public in each polling place between now and the next registration date October 27. If any voters name has been omitted from the register the attention of the judges of election or the supervisor should be called to such omission in order that the name may be entered upon the register and thus save the time and trouble of swearing in voters whose names may have been omitted.

INFECTION IS FATAL TO TINLEY PARK RESIDENT

The entire community of Tinley Park was saddened last Friday afternoon, October 9, by the sudden death of Mrs. Alice Anderson which occurred at St. Francis hospital in Blue Island, where she had been rushed to at 10:45 the same morning. Death was due to an acute streptococcus infection. She was taken seriously ill on Thursday and her condition became so alarming that she was rushed to the hospital Friday morning, but medical science was unable to check the rapid infection and death came Friday evening. Mr. Anderson was away from home driving a meat truck and was unable to reach the hospital before death came. Mrs. Anderson had passed away about 20 minutes before her husband arrived at her bedside.

Alice Dorothea Anderson, nee Hilgendorf, was born in Clinton, Ia., November 19, 1895. She was united in marriage with Ernest C. Anderson June 19, 1930. This union was blessed with one son, Eugene, another child was born several weeks ago but died soon after birth. Mrs. Anderson was loved by all who knew her. She proved herself a true and loyal friend and a willing worker in the following organizations: Garden Club, Women's Club, P. T. A., M. E. Ladies' Aid, Royal Neighbors, and the American Legion Auxiliary. Her memory will always be as beautiful as her flowers that completely covered and surrounded her casket. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hilgendorf and to the Tinley Park Methodist church. Dr. Hopkins of Oak Forest, officiated. The edifice was far too small to accommodate even a small portion of the hundreds of friends and neighbors who came to attend the last rites. A public address system was installed in the church so that those seated in the parlors and those standing outside the church were able to hear the service. The floral offerings were very profuse and beautiful. Mrs. Anderson had always been a lover of flowers and they completely covered her casket. As requested at one time by Mrs. Anderson, her favorite songs were sung and her favorite poem recited at the service. Dr. Hopkins gave a wonderful account of Mrs. Anderson's life, her character, and her sweet disposition, and also recited the "Crossing of the Bar."

The deceased was a member of the Tinley Park M. E. Church. At the services the Royal Neighbors held their last rites over their departed member. The burial was made in the Tinley Park cemetery. Here the American Legion Auxiliary and the Junior Auxiliary had charge of the last rites of these organizations and Mrs. Swisher, a very close friend of the deceased, recited the latter's favorite Psalm, the 23rd. Fully 400 people attended the services at the cemetery. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, Ernest C. Anderson, one son Eugene, her mother Mrs. O. Hilgendorf, of Chicago, 3 brothers, Gus, of America, Ind.; Henry, of Oakley, Ind.; and Arthur of Chicago, Ill., her immediate family at Tinley Park and hosts of friends. The Anderson family have been residents of Tinley Park for the past 15 years.

R. I. Plans To Run 6 Streamlined Trains

About two months ago this paper carried a "scoop on the story about the Rock Island railroad planning to operate stream-lined trains. This week the newest recruit to "hit the parade" of new fast trains in the middle-west is the Rock Island. They are receiving bids for the construction of 6 new stream-liners to go into the road's schedule.

The first is planned for the Chicago to Peoria run which has been one of the weak spots in the system for some time. To shorten the length of time required to make the run of 161 miles the new train will do the jaunt in 2½ hours. A second of the stream-liners will go on the Chicago, Des Moines run, cutting the time for the 358 miles from 8 to 6 hours. Two others will be operated on the Denver, Kansas City division and the Kansas City Twin Cities runs.

flyer will most likely be named the "Caterpillar" in recognition of the big firm in that city which now has more than 11,000 men on its payroll.

The Iowa train will of course be the "Hawk."

SYNOPSIS

Sleepy Cat, desert town of the Southwest, is celebrating the fourth of July. Jane Van Tassel, beautiful daughter of Gus Van Tassel, hated owner of Gunlock ranch, has arrived from the East for the first time. She watches the Frontier Day celebration in company with Doctor Carpy, crusty, tender-hearted friend of the community. Henry Sawdy of the Circle Dot ranch, tricked in a fake horse race the day before by Dave McCrossen, foreman at Gunlock, plans revenge. He enters Bill Denison, a handsome young Texas wrangler, in the rodeo which McCrossen is favored to win, and lays heavy bets on him. Unknown to the crowd, Denison is a champion horseman. McCrossen and the young stranger tie in the various events. Denison then drops a cigarette carelessly. Racing down the track full tilt, he picks up the cigarette. The verdict goes to Denison when McCrossen refuses to attempt the stunt. Entreated by the crowd, Denison agrees to perform another trick. Jane Van Tassel is asked for her bracelet and throws it on the track. Just as Denison rides to pick it up a yell from Barney Rebstock, a McCrossen henchman, scares the pony, nearly costing the rider his life. Gun plays its part in the intervention of Doctor Carpy. Back on Gunlock ranch, after two years in Chicago, because of her father's illness, Jane gets lost riding in the hills and meets Denison, now a neighbor, who guides her home. Not knowing her identity, he speaks bitterly of Van Tassel. She tells McCrossen who brought her home and she denounces Denison as a cattle thief. Later she asks Doctor Carpy why her father is unpopular and he tells her it is because of Van Tassel's ruthless and unscrupulous character. Jane avoids Denison, but longs to see him. When at length they meet, he confesses his love. Forest fires sweep the area, endangering the ranches. Jane sends cowhands from Gunlock to aid Denison. When McCrossen refuses to help, she discharges him.

Half a dozen cowboys had edged up to listen to the controversy. Jane whirled around to them. "Boys," she said, speaking in lower but very determined tones, "take no more orders from Dave McCrossen. He's no longer foreman here."

Reeling off her words rapidly and firmly, Jane explained the situation to her growing circle of listeners. "Now I have discharged McCrossen," she said in conclusion, "and I want all of you boys who are loyal to me to ride with me over to the fire line on the Denison ranch and see what we can do to save his buildings. Those of you who will go, line up here with me."

One of the boys, Bull Page, stepped promptly to Jane's side. Before he reached it, four more were on their way. Barney Rebstock and a crows stood still. It meant that they sided with the foreman.

"Now, Bull," she added snappily, "hunt up as many of the other boys as you can find and let's get going."

Within a few minutes, with the ponies dancing and the men shouting, a party of ten headed south for the Denison ranch.

Not until they reached the last crest of the hills separating the two ranches and Jane looked over on the lowlands of the smaller ranch, did she catch her breath in sudden fear. In the distance she saw a formidable wall of white smoke billowing into the sky above the timber along the border of the reservation.

In the nearer distance lay Denison's buildings. Between the two points a second fire burned, curving like a great scimitar along the cut-over lands surrounding the ranch.

"Bull!" she called fearfully to her nearest cowboy. "What does it all mean—is there anything that can be saved?"

"Why, I can see where they've been back-firin'. Can't tell much about it till we get closer. Come on, boys! Push 'em over the hill. If this is too fast for you, miss," he yelled, "follow us!"

But nothing was too fast for Jane. The city girl was always on their heels.

With the ponies in a lather, the Gunlock crew pulled up short before the ranch-house corral, where a party of fire fighters just from town were starting for the front. Henry Sawdy, smoked and scorched, was guiding them out. Bill Pardaloe headed the town men. In the bunch were the evangelist preacher, Big Bill Hayes, alias Panama; the liverman, McAlpin; Spotts, the bald-headed and profane barber; Selwood, the cattleman, with half a dozen of his men; Jim Laramie, from away up in the Crazy Woman country, with a bunch of his cowboys.

Jane saw a man riding up from the creek, but it did not look to her like Bill Denison. Not until he drew near and lifted his hat hastily to her as he rode over to talk to Pardaloe, did she realize it was he.

As rapidly as possible he greeted the newcomers, told them where they were most needed, pointed and started them on their way, and turned to Jane.

The boys, including Jane's contingent, dashed off with much shouting and yelling. Conspicuous among them rode the evangelist preacher, Panama, his heavy, straight black hair dancing up and down under his sombrero, and with him rode his neophyte, the bald and profane Jake Spotts.

"Oh, Bill!" exclaimed Jane, as Denison rode up, "I'm so sorry."

"I hope I didn't stir things up over there, by sending that message. I shouldn't have done it, only—I promised," he said in a dry, cracked voice.

"Don't think about the small things, Bill. You should have sent long ago. I brought all the men I could."

"McCrossen refused to come?"

"He was kind of mean—so I came myself—I hope I'll do for a substitute?"

His answering smile was joyful. "It was too good of you to come, Jane. But now I've got to ride right out again. Would you step into the cabin and rest up before you ride back?"

"Ride back? Yes, but who's going to cook for all these men? I'm going back to get Quong and bring him over in the chuck wagon and take possession here."

Noon passed before Jane got back to Denison's and installed herself with Quong in the kitchen.

One man, severely burned, came in from the front towards dark. Carpy could not be reached till morning. Jane bandaged the man's arms and fed him. Denison rode in late, smoked and scorched anew, but tireless.

"Bill," she asked, sitting down opposite him, "tell me honestly: are you holding it?"

"Jane, to tell the truth, I don't know. Sometimes I think we are—sometimes it looks bad. In a forest fire, every hour must tell its own story; that's about the size of it."

It was late when they walked out of doors together. The southern sky was angry red. "It'll be a hard day tomorrow, Bill," said Jane. "There's nothing more I can do here, tonight. I'm going home. I'll be back by daylight in the morning. You go to bed. You must be dead."

Afterward He Sat Down Beside Jane on the Bench Outside the Door.

"I'll ride over along with you, Jane."

"No, you will not."

"But, Jane, you're not going to deprive me of riding home with you?"

"Yes, I am."

"Oh, please!" He pleaded with her like a boy. "I've been counting on it all day—"

"I thought you'd been fire-fighting all day."

"Fighting fire and thinking about you and saying, 'Tonight I'll ride home with Jane.' Oh, girl! If you knew what that means."

Bull Page stood by the ponies. Denison saddled his own, and Jane and her escort set out for Gunlock.

They did not ride fast. There was so much to talk over. Both were serious. Denison knew better than Jane how grave the danger was both to himself and to her. But he had his hour with the woman he loved, and for that hour what else in the world mattered?

"Oh, Bill," protested Jane, faintly, sick at heart with the happiness of listening to his words. "Don't! You mustn't say such things. I won't listen to you, Bill. I'm nothing but a girl, and you're making me a goddess or a fairy—stop such nonsense. Not one word more, Bill Denison. If you keep on, I'll break out crying. Here's the house, anyway. Good night. I'll be over in the morning at daylight. Think well of me, Bill. I always shall of you!"

Every available man was out on the front lines when Jane reached the threatened ranch after daybreak. Quong kept the little stove in the kitchen hot, and Jane, busy about the cabin and looking after the boy burned the day before, did not realize how fast the morning was going, until Carpy arrived from town to dress the lad's burns. He greeted Jane and, with her to help, went to work on his patient.

Afterward he sat down beside Jane on the bench outside the door.

"So," said he, "you're playing good Samaritan. How are you holding out over at Gunlock?"

"All right; the danger is all from this way. If we can hold the fire over here, it's not likely to bother us. Oh, doctor," exclaimed Jane, springing to her feet, "what does that mean?"

Riding out of the woods south of the ranch house, she saw a party of men slowly advancing. Doctor Carpy's eyes were more practiced. "Some one hurt," he said tersely. Jane was in a flutter. "Keep cool," admonished Carpy as he rose. "We'll soon know what it's all about."

Riding between two men, supporting him on his pony, a third man riding behind the trio, Carpy saw the injured man, hatless and coatless, and heard him suppress an occasional groan. Carpy walked forward to greet the party. "Well, boys," he asked, "who is it this time?"

Jim Laramie answered. "Why, doc, it's Jake Spotts. There's been a bad accident. Jake and Panama got cut off up by the pass. Stayed too long. I'm glad you're here, doc; he's hurt pretty bad."

"No!" screamed Spotts, so blackened and burned as to be unrecognizable, and writhing in pain, "it ain't me, doc; it's Panama! Damn it—go back, boys, and get Panama. I tell you, go back!"

"Denison has gone to get him, doc," explained Laramie. "Keep quiet, Jake, you only make your leg worse. It's his leg, doc."

Carpy motioned. "Bring him into the cabin."

The unfortunate barber, eased, with many groans, off the pony, was laid on the dinner table, asking for water and half deliriously calling for Panama. Carpy examined Spotts. He found to his relief that the man was not seriously burned.

"It's his left leg," explained Carpy a little later to the group; "broke down near the ankle."

"Doc," moaned the hollow-eyed, lantern-jawed barber, "I'm all right. For God's sake get the boys to go back after Panama."

Carpy saw that nothing but a bluff would quiet the pain-racked man. He turned to the men standing by and winked. "Here, you fellows! Get right out and hunt for Panama. And don't show up here till you find him!" thundered Carpy.

Keeping up a rapid fire of talk, Carpy opened his bag, set out his needed appliances and his bottle of chloroform, gradually subdued the man, got him, with Jane's help, under the anesthetic, and working in his shirt sleeves and in the intense heat at a breathtaking speed, finished the operation, sat down, drew a cigar from his waistcoat pocket and lighted it.

"Jane," he said, "I suppose this is your first surgical case?"

"Yes, Doctor."

"You'd make a good nurse, girl."

"Doctor, what do you suppose he meant calling so for Panama?"

Carpy explained. "Today," he continued, "Panama was his partner on the line: the men work in pairs generally."

"I hope they'll find him all right."

"I hope," observed Carpy thoughtfully, "he'll be all right when they do find him."

"There come some of the boys. Denison is with them," Carpy said suddenly, pointing to the edge of the woods. "They're halting. They've got something slung across the back of a pony. I'll walk over."

CHAPTER VII

Dr. Carpy walked hurriedly to the edge of the woods where the men gathered closely around him.

"Best thing to do is to take off that old bunkhouse door, Bill," said Carpy, when he saw whom they were carrying. "We can lay him on that and carry him over here to the shed."

They had brought Panama out of the burned timber where Denison and Bull Page had found him. They had taken in a pony, bareback, to where he lay, slung the big fellow across it, and thus carried him through the woods.

Panama was lifted from the pony and laid on the door. A colored neckerchief was laid over his face, and with stumbling steps he was carried back of the bunkhouse. Two sawhorses had been set to support the door, and on it Panama lay at rest. His companions made ready to start back for the fire lines.

"Now, boys, watch out," said Denison gravely. "We can't afford any more mistakes like this. If Jake and Panama had listened to me they wouldn't have got cut off. Bull," he added, speaking to Page, "get up a pair of ponies, if you can find 'em, and hitch 'em to the light wagon. Carpy wants Panama taken right in town to the undertaker's."

The injured barber was coming to. He had been carried to the bunkhouse and was propped up on a bench outside the doorway. He looked at Carpy wistfully. "Tell me, Doc," he begged, "have they found Panama yet?"

I did what little I could do for him here. But I've not got what's needed here for treatment. Panama's got to go to town. They're hitching up the wagon."

Spotts started up, on fire. "Then I've got to see him before he goes. Don't let 'em start till I see him, Doc. Where is he?"

Carpy tried in vain to quiet his patient. He might as well have tried to stop a forest fire by talking to it. "Keep your leg quiet, Jake. You mustn't have any excitement tonight. I've done my best for you. Now, damn it, dry up: I tell you you can't see him."

A dreadful light dawned on the barber. His gaunt jaw dropped, his hollow eyes flamed. "Doc!" he cried out. "Panama's dead!"

The word rang in Carpy's ears for many a day. "Jake," he said brusquely, "I've tried to soften things for you—doesn't seem to be no use. They pulled him out of the woods after the fire passed a grove back of Gunlock Knob."

Flattering Matron Frock

1841-B

This frock is the eighth wonder of the world. Just imagine only four major pieces to cut and sew and you've completed a frock that renders a becoming, chic, and flattering appearance to a size 34 or 46.

It has clever short sleeves, that can be supplanted by long ones, scalloped blouse opening and the kind of collar that echoes the adoring "ahs" of your neighbors. The dress is dart fitted at the waist and shoulders for ease and a slimming effect, while a self-fabric belt adds its contribution too. You want to own this thoroughly young style and attractive model that's as easy to make as to look at, don't you? Here's your opportunity, order this debonair model today. It's irresistible indeed.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1841-B is available for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires four and one-eighth yards with long sleeves; and three and three-fourths yards of 39 inch material with short sleeves. Price of pattern, 15 cents.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents for your copy.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill. Patterns 15 cents each.

Into the Stratosphere

Captain Stevens, who made the record flight of 72,395 feet into the stratosphere in the balloon Explorer II last year, believes with slight changes in apparatus carried and using hydrogen as a lifting gas the same balloon and gondola could ascend to 78,000 feet. He also believes that 95,000 feet could be reached with a larger balloon with the envelope made of rubberized silk instead of rubberized cotton.

OF COURSE, children should never drink coffee. And many grown-ups, too, find that the caffeine in coffee disagrees with them. If you have headaches or indigestion or can't sleep soundly... try Postum. It contains no caffeine. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened.

You may miss coffee at first, but after 30 days you'll love Postum for its own rich, satisfying flavor. Postum comes in two forms—Postum Cereal, the kind you boil, and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. Either way it is easy to make, delicious, economical, and may prove a real help. Curse of Progress

Tender Hat Wanted
A man walked reluctantly into a hat shop, says Ireland's Own, of Dublin.

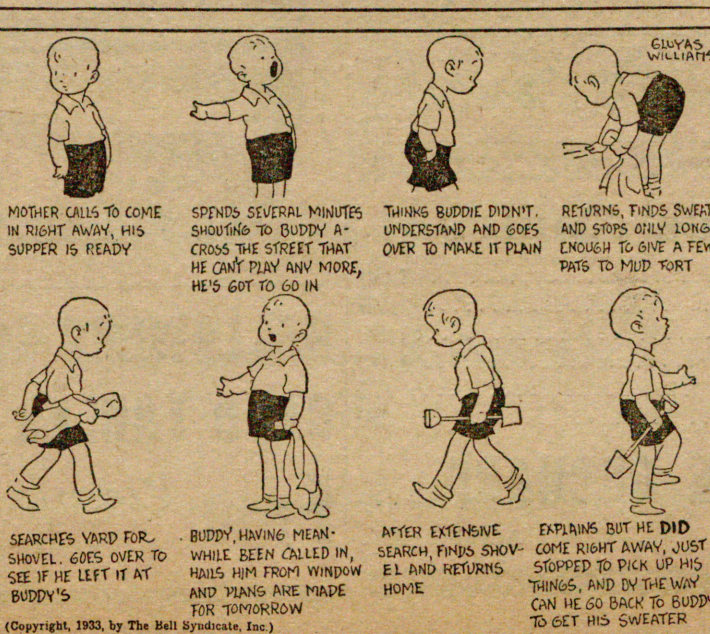

"I've just lost a bet," he said, "and I want to buy a soft hat." "This is the softest we have," said the assistant. The customer gazed at it speculatively. "What I want," he said wistfully, "is something a little more tender; I've got to eat it."

Strange
Wife—There's a strange hair on your coat lapel, you worm!
Hubby—Now, darling, that's a hair from our dog. It isn't a woman's hair, honestly.
Wife — I know. That's what's strange about it.

Sit Down
Teacher — Johnny, can you define nonsense?
Johnny — Yes, teacher — an elephant hanging over a cliff with his tail tied to a daisy.

Uncle Phil Says:

And Get Nowhere
Life is an uphill road unless you stand still or sit down.

We don't ask for people to think seriously all the time; but we want them to be able to if necessary.

It requires some art to deliver a compliment and not do it awkwardly.

We hate to have people do things for us "because it is their duty to."

Makes or Breaks
Disappointment is discipline to a strong man, annihilation to a weak one.

In this land of free speech, one is at liberty to criticize everything but children, mothers and dogs.

Many tricks as well as crimes have been perpetuated in the name of freedom in all ages.

If one has a dominating personality, one ought to find it out early in life.

They Insist
There are men you first meet with indifference who know you are going to like them before they get through with you; and remarkably they win.

Is an open mind merely the losing of one's valuable convictions?

Genius is often painful to the possessor of it and all those close to him.

Young people think love is the most important. After awhile they find that success in life is equally so.

If You're Told to "Alkalize"

Try This Remarkable "Phillips" Way
Thousands are Adopting

On every side today people are being urged to alkalize their stomach. And thus ease symptoms of "acid indigestion," nausea and stomach upsets.

To gain quick alkalization, just do this: Take two teaspoons of PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA 30 minutes after eating. OR — take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets, which have the same antacid effect.

Relief comes almost at once — usually in a few minutes. Nausea, "gas," fullness after eating and "acid indigestion" pains leave. You feel like a new person.

Try this way. You'll be surprised at results. Get either the liquid "Phillips" or the remarkable, new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Delightful to take and easy to carry with you. Only 25¢ a box at all drug stores.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:
Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

BEANS Are Busy These Cold Days

Do you know beans? Do you know, for instance, that there are two general types of canned pork and beans? One type is baked in ovens and called baked beans. In the other type the baking is omitted, and the beans are cooked in the can after it is sealed.

There are also two or three different types of sauce. Some beans are packed plain. Others with tomato sauce. Some are packed without pork as a so-called "vegetarian" product. Look at the labels and select the kind you like best. Then there are canned lima beans. Podding raw limas is a hard, time-consuming job. Housewives want to avoid it. Even right in the raw lima bean season, many of them buy canned limas to save this labor.

For Winter Warmth

At this season of the year, this good nourishing vegetable is in great demand because it helps those who eat it to resist the cold. Of course if you know beans, you know how to prepare them for the table, but here's a recent recipe for lima beans that you may not have learned.

Stringless Beans in Cheese Sauce:
Drain the contents of a No. 2 can stringless beans and spread out in a shallow baking dish. Make a white sauce of three tablespoons butter, two and a fourth tablespoons flour, two-thirds cup liquor from the beans, two-thirds cup water and two-thirds cup evaporated milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper, add two-thirds cup grated cheese and stir until melted. Pour over beans. Cover with buttered crumbs and brown in hot oven. Serves six.*

What the Politicians Should Know

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

One of the most interesting developments of recent weeks has been the sudden alarm of many men in public office over various political and economic theories which happened to originate elsewhere than in legislative halls.

Openly the politicians are expressing amazement at many of these new plans and projects, and wondering aloud just where and how they were inspired.

But the politicians should be the last of men to ask such questions.

For years many of them, in the quest of popular support, have been advocating projects not only startling and unusual, but frequently at odds with our American theories of government.

For years many of them have been preaching, for example, the exact opposite of Grover Cleveland's famous dictum that it is the business of the people to support the government—not of the government to support the people.

But whatever the temporary influence of such philosophies on scattered groups of citizens, they seem to be exercising little effect on the great productive body of American workers and earners.

Recognizing a responsibility to the handicapped and unfortunate, this preponderant group, which represents the real strength and spirit of America, still believes with Theodore Roosevelt that America expects every citizen to be willing, so far as he is able, to pull his own weight.

And so long as that typically American spirit of courage and self-reliance prevails, neither the politicians nor the people need fear the wildest theories

Safety Grams

Whenever we see a crippled man walking the highways our sympathies go out to him immediately. Everyone feels sorry for him because of the plight he is in and hopes that he will get along in his present condition as well as possible.

How many cripples, however, in the form of automobiles are on the highways? Who pities and sympathizes with them? If, by sight, we could have some way of determining this condition, indignation would rise high because of the terrible defects most automobiles have.

Would it surprise you that from tests made of the mechanical condition of cars in a number of states, three out of every four vehicles registered are dangerous because of some defect in safety equipment? That is a fact.

Tests show that brakes in 33 per cent of the cars are in need of replacement or repairs, and that lamps need to be replaced or adjusted in nearly 70 per cent. Tires are either poor or in only fair condition in nearly 48 per cent.

These are the cripples that should be taken off the highways.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 11.
The Golden Text was, "Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you" (James 4:7, 8).
Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation. He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death" (Psalms 68:10, 20).
The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "In the Gospel of John, it is declared that all things were made through the Word of God," and without Him (the logos, or word) was not anything made that was made. Whatever is valueless or baneful, He did not make,—hence its unreality" (p. 525).

ORLAND

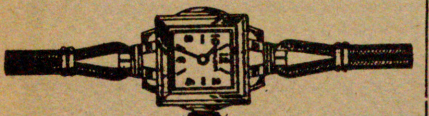

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Schmaedeke and son Orville were guests of Sprague-Warner, wholesalers in Chicago at a chicken dinner at their place of business, Monday evening. After the dinner the guests were taken on a tour through the establishment, seeing how the good products are handled by that company. They saw coffee come in from the coffee markets of the world and the many different stages it goes through before it gets to the consumer. They saw the oats brought in by the farmer and the different stages it goes through to become the oatmeal breakfast food.

A movie program was later presented which was most entertaining. Mrs. Fred Wiseman is very ill in the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Habenicht.

Mrs. Louis Nicolai is recovering from pneumonia.

The card and bunco party given by the St. Michael Catholic church Sunday evening was very largely attended.

ORLAND PARK SCHOOL NEWS

Last Thursday was such "perfect bright-blue October weather" that Mr. Linden decided it was an ideal day for the Science class to take a field trip. Everyone who went was supposed to look for five different species of the following: birds, flowers, shrubs, trees, insects and animals. Of all these things, some insects called mosquitoes were the most prevalent. Some members of the class carried along several new science books to help identify unfamiliar species. There were also a number of field glasses and one telescope to aid in seeing things at a distance. Extra credit in English will be given to those students who write a theme on the trip. In this, as in other ways, we are attempting to correlate the subjects of English and Science. At the end of the field trip Mr. Linden and Miss Priest treated their students to a marshmallow roast.

On account of the gloomy, rainy weather Friday, an unusual amount of group singing could be heard in the school building during the day. The high-school students went down to the auditorium for singing during the regular recreation period.

Miss Priest is considering the selection of a one-act play, which will be a program project within a short time. More will be reported about this next week.

William Elkin received the highest score of 91 in a very difficult Objective Science test which was given to the General Science class last week.

What Are They Afraid Of?

The warning by Atty. Gen. Cummings to retail merchants that it is treason or something to tell John Citizen how much he is being mulched by Federal taxes is the kind of of politics that desperation hatches. The Attorney-General has dug up some obscure statute, passed presumably by Congress when the public wasn't looking, which provides a fine of $1,000 and a year in jail as the possible penalty for making statements which would lead anyone to believe that any part of the price of an article he purchases is due to Federal taxation.

If there is such a statute, it obviously is not worth the paper it is written on, being in direct conflict with the First Amendment to the Constitution. Cummings does the New Deal a distinct dis-service by his announcement since he is helping to advertise the placards that are being widely distributed, setting forth in detail how much taxes contribute to the cost of articles of common consumption.

He will advertise the situation still more thoroughly if he attempts to prosecute anybody under this comic effort of the administration to keep the results of New Deal extravagance a secret. The case would not only be laughed out of court, but there would be a disastrous political reaction to any such proceeding.

Indeed, the President himself apparently could be prosecuted under the statute. For in 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt said in memorable words, "Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors.... Our workers may never see a tax bill, but they pay.... in increased cost of what they buy...." If Cummings wants to prosecute somebody, let him start at the top.

If the 1932 utterance is barred by the statute of limitations, Cummings can indict the President for this statement on September 2, 1935.

"In 1929, consumers' taxes represented only 30 per cent of national revenue. Today they are 60 per cent." This statement was made in writing over the President's signature and thus is easily provable.

The attorney-general's unrest is doubtless caused by figures prepared by Republican National Committee statisticians showing that 1200 different hidden taxes are paid by the average householder, and 1500 by the average housewife; that taxes add 2 cents to the cost of a loaf of bread, 20 to 40 per cent to a cake of soap; 20 per cent to the cost of meat; 25 per cent to the cost of sugar. Taxes amount to $3.53 for an $18 suit of clothes, 59 cents for a $3 hat. About 170 separate taxes are imposed on the cost of an average meal.

Not all Federal taxes, of course, but the Federal taxes pile on the burden. They already amount to $200 a year for each family in the United States, and the New Deal is boasting them.

No wonder the New Dealers are afraid to have it known!

Breaking Down Of Tariff Keeps Unemployed Idle

Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for Governor, speaking Wednesday night, Oct. 7, at Streator, Ill. charged the New Deal administration at Washington and Springfield with halting re-employment of the country's idle by breaking down tariff walls and imposing tax burdens that hamstringing industry and business.

Brooks declared that the foremost problem today is to provide permanent jobs for 10,000,000 unemployed. He said that no real Americans are happy on the dole and that excessive taxes and bureaucratic meddling with business have reduced payrolls and halted recovery.

In 1935, over $900,000,000 worth of foreign made industrial and manufactured goods were shipped into the United States, the speaker declared. Electric light bulbs, canvas shoes, rayon and silk goods, woolen gloves, leather shoes, china, glassware and crockery are flooding the American market, he said.

"These wares are made by workmen of foreign countries who live on a few cents a day", Brooks said. "American workmen and American business cannot compete with this flood. Therefore our factories, industries and business cannot expand. New enterprises cannot be started. Our idle must remain unemployed and dependent upon a dole."

Brooks went on record as opposed to any increase in real estate taxes for state purposes and declared that sufficient money must be provided at all times for the care of unemployed needy and aged.

"Taxes can and will be reduced if I am elected Governor. Rigid economy and adherence to business principles and the elimination of a horde of unnecessary payrollers will make this reduction possible. There must be no increase in real estate taxes for state purposes and sufficient money must at all times be provided for the care of our unemployed needy and aged."

Education Stressed In Platform of Van der Vreis

Education held a prominent place in the platform of Bernice T. Van der Vreis when first elected on the Republican ticket as representative from the Seventh Senatorial District to the General Assembly of Illinois. As a member of the House Committee on Education and upon the floor of the House she has consistently and effectively fostered the cause of education and the welfare of the school teachers of Illinois.

Mrs. Van der Vreis worked aggressively for and if re-elected will continue to work increasingly to secure the enactment of laws among others having for their objects,—the payment of the seven million dollar school distributive fund due from the state to the schools of Illinois, the protection of teachers pensions and annuities and assistance to schools in financial distress.

She favors and has consistently favored a non-salaried State Board of Education, non-partisan in character whose purpose will be the making effective a forward looking plan of education for our state. Illinois is one of only five states in which such a board is not operative.

Citizens interested in the cause of education should actively support the candidacy of Mrs. Van der Vreis for re-election on the Republican ticket on November 3rd.

Communistic Charges Ridiculed By Loughran

Francis J. Loughran, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, today ridiculed charges that President Roosevelt's administration has been Communistic in tendency and that the President seeks the support of "Reds" to further his campaign for election.

"President Roosevelt," Mr. Loughran asserted, "is the object of malicious charges which his foes have trumped up because they see every other campaign issue denied to them."

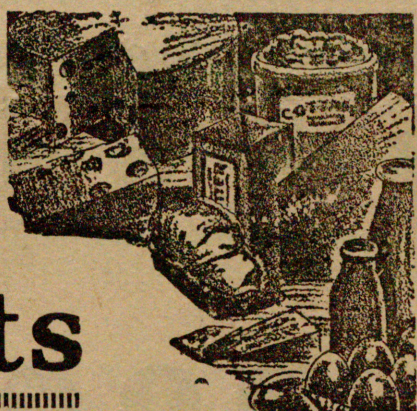

Mr. Loughran pointed out that the President's major concern has been for the "little fellow", the unemployed laborer and mechanic, the farmer, the small industrialist. "I deny that you can call it Communism when the President enacts legislation to help the farmer, to feed the hungry, and to clothe the naked."

Speaking on his own candidacy, Mr. Loughran promised complete protection for farm life and property if he is elected to office. "I am fully in accord with the work of F-men", he said, "and I shall cooperate with them in every manner possible if I am elected."

Prairie Farmer Favors Roosevelt For Re-Election

The Prairie Farmer, published in Chicago, one of the oldest and most widely circulated farm papers in the country, has declared itself in its current issue in favor of re-election of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The declaration was made in the form of a signed article by The Prairie Farmer's editor, Clifford V. Gregory, outstanding farm editor, and writer on farm subjects. The Prairie Farmer circulates especially through the middle west. It is non-political in character. In expressing the attitude of the Prairie Farmer, Mr. Gregory explains he voices both his own view and that of Burrage D. Butler, the Farmer's publisher.

Mr. Gregory speaks from a notable background of agricultural experience. He was born in the "tall corn" state of Iowa at Mason City in 1883. He was graduated from the Iowa State College of Agriculture in 1910 and was a professor in the same institution in 1910-11. He has been editor of the Prairie Farmer since 1911, is vice-president of the Prairie Farmer Publishing Company, of the Agricultural Broadcasting Company WLS, and is director of the Agricultural Publishers' Association, and is President of the Midwest United Farm Papers.

Mr. Gregory explained that neither he nor Mr. Butler owe allegiance to any political party.

"We have voted for Republicans as for Democrats. Our views are not partisan. Our only allegiance is to our readers. Our only interest is the welfare of American Agriculture, which underlies the welfare of the entire nation."

The public position taken by the Prairie Farmer is one of the notable pronouncements of the campaign. Its support of President Roosevelt indicates the trend of political opinion in the agricultural midwest.

In calling upon the farmers of the country to support President Roosevelt, Mr. Gregory says the question before the farm folks for an answer is whether or not they want unrestricted production with 1932 prices, which he says is the Landon program or whether they are going to "stand by a President who has done everything he could for them."

Explaining the nature of that choice, he says:

"Four years ago banks were crashing, farm mortgages were being foreclosed, and farm prices were at a level so low that it meant ruin for agriculture and for the country. Farm and city folks alike were in despair; hope had all but vanished from their hearts. We do not want to go through that experience again."

The first issue in this campaign,

Mr. Gregory insists, is:

"Do we want unrestricted production and 1932 prices, the gold standard hung around our necks again, the bank deposit guarantee act repealed or do we want to follow and perfect the policies of the past three and one-half years that have raised our prices and given security to our farms and our bank accounts?"

Analyzing the position of the Republican candidate for President, Mr. Gregory cites the campaign to instill terror among consumers in the larger cities. These city dwellers, without further explanation, are told that the prices of farm products have risen.

Mr. Gregory says this city campaign of the Republicans can mean only one thing—namely, "That the powers that control the Republican party are in favor of unrestricted farm production" so there will be more profits in the transporting, handling and processing of farm products.

"It means," he explained, "that Republican party is in favor of $3.00 hogs and 15 cent corn—back to 1932 farm prices is the plain meaning of the Republican cheap-food campaign in the cities."

Six Babies in Three Days World's Greatest Terror Another Mild Bad Man How to Avoid Thought

President Sacasa of Nicaragua confirms officially the statement that a very poor woman on the "distant shore of Lake Nicaragua has given birth to seven babies."

Arthur Brisbane
de Jesus and Juana Ramona.

The seventh name was not telegraphed, for there was no seventh, as it was expected there would be. Five of the sextuplets are already dead. Only one, a girl, lives.

What would population of the earth be if such births were the rule and all lived?

At the opening of the Catholic press exhibition in Vatican City, Pope Pius, for the second time within two days, cautioned the world against communism, which he called "the great terror which threatens all the world."

For the comfort of those that live in dread of final Communist world conquest, it may be said that thus far nothing opposed to human nature has ever succeeded.

By the arrest in California of Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., kidnaper of Mrs. Stoll, Mr. Hoover and his G-men brought into the shadow of the electric chair the last of the group of dangerous criminals that have recently been wandering about the country.

This "bad man," like others recently gathered in, shook with fright when he found the gun pointed at him, made no effort to fight. When the guns are pointed the wrong way, "bad men" often change to good, meek and scared men.

Stamp collectors have held a celebration, grateful to Doctor Eckener for a new kind of stamp. How many ways man finds to keep busy and at the same time avoid thinking!

Collecting queer things, stamps or tear jugs; playing bridge, working cross-word puzzles, playing solitaire, rushing to the far corners of the world to spend money—usually not earned; going to Africa to kill big game animals. Those are some substitutes for thinking and working constructively, the only occupation worthy of a human being.

Mrs. James C. Canipe of Clovis, New Mexico, as a girl was not able to finish high school, but that did not discourage her. She waited some years. Then she joined the senior high school class with her son and daughter-in-law, and will graduate with them this month, among the most brilliant scholars.

Chancellor Hitler, who was never married, nevertheless thinks marriage a good idea. Young Nazis, in the public employ, have been told that unless they marry by the time they are twenty-six years old there is something the matter with their "courage and will power."

A syndicate is formed to seek the "buried gold bags of Alexander the Great," containing at least $300,000,000 in yellow wealth.

Alexander the Great's ghost might be surprised to hear about that. Alexander was too busy to collect gold, and not the kind of man to bury it in a hole.

Encouraged by her father, a sixteen-year-old high school girl walked onto the wing of a small plane, prepared for a first parachute jump, at 1,500 feet. The pilot perceived that the parachute cord had been pulled prematurely; pulled her back into the cockpit in time to save her from death.

Without requiring encouragement, Mrs. Harriet O. Hague, eighty-six years old, flew the ocean on the Hindenburg return trip. Tell that to your friend who used to oppose female suffrage "because women are not brave like men."

PROSPERITY WITH ROOSEVELT AND THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY!

Progress on remarkable strides, has been made in the past three years under the able leadership of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. A check of the grain and stock market prices, the last day of the Republican administration and a comparison of prices taken for newspaper files for May 27, 1936 vividly shows progress made under the Democratic reign.

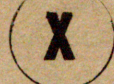

Here they are:

Joliet Grain Market	Prices
	October 2, 1936	March, 1933
WHEAT NO. 2	1.15	.37
WHEAT NO. 3	1.10	.35
CORN NO. 3 YELLOW	1.00	.15
Stocks
U. S. STEEL	.73	.26 1-4
GENERAL MOTORS	.70 7-8	.10 3-4
SEARS ROEBUCK	.89	.14 5-8
MONTGOMERY WARD	.49 3-4	.10 5-8
AMER. TEL. TELG.	1.75	.99 7-8
TEXAS CORP.	.38	.11 1-2
INT. HARVEST	.86	.16 3-4

What more tangible proof is required to show the recovery that has been made? Farm income is 3 times what it was in 1932. Fair-minded voters know that the Roosevelt administration has led the country out of depression back to prosperity.

Democrats in Will County offer a state and county ticket that is beyond reproach. Men seeking county office here are able, honest and possessed with the intelligence to carry out their duties in a safe and trustworthy manner. The overwhelming vote received by Governor Henry Horner in the recent primary election is best evidence of the high regard in which he is held by voters in this state. Will County Democrats in the primary election obtained a record-breaking vote, a vote that insures party success next fall. To vote the Democratic ticket in the fall election, to record your approval of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor Horner and the Democratic ticket, all you need do is put an X in the Democratic circle at the top of the ballot.

Landon Will Fulfill Roosevelt Promises

"I shall fulfill all outstanding obligations made by the present administration with the American farmer. By this I mean that those who have carried out their end of the bargain will receive the checks due them. I am equally emphatic in my views on meeting the suffering caused by the present drought. We will use the full power of government to relieve the present distress. There will be no waste and no politics."—Alf M. Landon at Des Moines, September 22, 1936.

Excess Taxation Vicious Circle The more money the New Deal wastes, says Governor Alf Landon, the more it has to tax the people. The more taxes are imposed, the less food and clothing people can buy and the less they can set aside for education, building of homes, construction of factories and the improvement of farms. Every dollar the New Deal takes for taxes means just one dollar less for production and jobs.

NEW YORK ADOPTS "WELFARE OF MAN" AS THEME OF FAIR

$125,000,000 Exposition to Depict Building the World of Tomorrow

New York.—The New York World's Fair of 1939, which, according to Grover Whalen, President of the Fair, will be a $125,000,000 show, will have a theme—"Building the World of Tomorrow."

This was announced for the first time by Mr. Whalen, following the adoption of the theme and the design by the Board of Directors.

"The Theme," said Mr. Whalen, "encompasses the well-being of man, the betterment of life. It will be carried out in our exhibit zones, in our amusements, and in a beautiful 'Theme Tower.' We will display to the visitors all the goods, all the materials, all the resources and powers man has amassed, to the end that by studying them, one may learn how to plan and to attain a more admirable future."

The design, a simple and practical one that is motivated by a consideration for the hundreds of thousands of people expected every day, divides the main section into ten zones. These zones will display exhibits of clothing, shelter, the arts, the basic industries, health, sustenance, recreation, government and co-operation, education, and public and social services. Each exhibit will be allocated to its proper zone. There will be no haphazard or scattered display. For the first time, visitors need not walk all over a fair grounds to see what they want to see, and only what they want to see.

Focal Exhibits

In each zone there will be a focal exhibit to explain, in dramatic fashion, the nature of the sector, its history, and its potential future.

The zones will be laid out around the "Theme Tower," in the heart of the main section, a 250 foot structure that will dominate the park. In this tower will be a panorama to show what strides America has made in the 150 years that have passed since George Washington strode into New York's old Federal Hall and took the oath of office as our first president.

The opening of the Fair, April 30, 1939, commemorates the 150th anniversary of that day.

This panorama will also show the interdependence of the 48 states born of the 13 original Colonies, and the interrelation of the big cities and the country districts of the United States.

The site of the Fair, Flushing Meadow Park, will be a permanent park after the Fair is done. It comprises 1216 acres—twice the space ever before given over to a Fair.

The work of converting the site into a Fair Grounds and a park requires engineering and artistic skill of the highest; the employment of hundreds of men, and the expenditure of millions of dollars.

Great mounds of debris must be shifted. Great depressions must be filled in. A river must be canalized and its tidal inlet dammed. Two great swamps must be dredged and made into beautiful lakes. Six thousand trees or more must be planted, tens of thousands of shrubs, millions of flowers. Roads must be built—and bridges must be built to span them. Sewers must be installed.

Cost to Run $125,000,000

The Fair officials estimate that $125,000,000 will have been spent before the first visitor is admitted to the grounds. The city and the state of New York and the Federal government are spending millions, and the buildings they erect will be permanent. The Fair Corporation will spend $30,000,000. Exhibitors, concessionaires, commercial groups, and other governmental agencies will spend at least $50,000,000. The city, state and Federal governments will expend about $35,000,000 for buildings, exhibits and collateral improvements.

Mr. Whalen believes that at least 50,000,000 people will visit the Fair in 1939, and arrangements are being made to handle them all in comfort. Eight hundred thousand people can be well cared for on any one day.

Three subway lines, the Long Island Railroad, buses and autos will be able to bring 160,000 people to the Fair Grounds every hour when arrangements are completed; though, in order to do this, it will be necessary to extend one subway system a distance of two miles. Roads are being built, extended, or widened, for the streams of cars that will pour into the park from the Triborough and Queensborough bridges. There will be a huge bus terminal, parking spaces for 30,000 autos and facilities for trailers.

A boat basin is being prepared in Flushing Bay, and plans are under way to dredge a channel in the harbor for the use of deep-draft ships that will bring Fair visitors from all parts of the world. There is also some discussion as to the advisability of developing an airport for those coming to the Fair by plane.

Comfort the Keynote

There will be buses inside the Fair Grounds as well as outside so that those who do not wish to walk may have cheap transportation to any part of the grounds they desire to visit. There will be thousands of tree-shaded benches for those who are weary. There will be restaurants and amusements of various kinds all over the 1216 acres. Beside this there will be a mile-long stretch of amusements east of the main lagoon—amusements that will not imitate Coney Island or Broadway.

An amphitheatre for opera, plays of all kinds, and other forms of entertainment will be built on the shore of the big lagoon. And there will be water sports on the lagoon.

A children's village, a "Hall of Nations"—for the Fair will be international in flavor, and most every government in the world will be represented—and other buildings, have been submitted to the Board of Design. But as yet the style of architecture to be employed has not been decided. A competition open to all the young architects of Greater New York may establish the style. It is the opinion of the board that most of the structures will be of only one story, and will depend upon beauty and originality instead of height.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB Hello, Everybody!

"Wild Cow Menaces Girl"

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Famous Headline Hunter.

"YOU'VE all heard the story of the cow that jumped over the moon," says Annie Barrett, "but have you heard the one about the cow that jumped over the girl? Well, that's what happened—and I'm the girl."

Annie says that was the biggest thrill of her whole life. She even goes farther than that. She says nothing possibly could give her a bigger thrill.

Pull your chairs up closer, boys and girls. Listen to this yarn of Annie's: Twelve years ago, when Annie was a girl of sixteen, she lived on a farm at Souris, Prince Edward Island, Canada. Her folks had a big orchard out back of the house, and a neighbor kept a couple of cows there. Also, the Barretts had a little brown dog named Teddy. Remember Teddy. He's an important actor in this little adventure drama that Annie is putting on for us today.

Now about those two cows in the back pasture. One of them was just an ordinary, stolid, easy-going cow. The other one, though—a brown and white one, with a mean eye—was a high-strung, temperamental creature that used to get cranky and start to act up whenever anyone came near her. She had never won any medals for contentedness, and never got her picture on any condensed milk cans. Annie and all the rest of the kids in the neighborhood usually gave her a wide berth when they were playing in the Barretts' orchard.

High-Strung Animals Are Story's Character.

Now we get back to the little brown dog, Teddy. Teddy was a high-strung, active animal, too. He thought the neighbor's cows, out there in the orchard, were put there for him to play with. If you didn't watch him closely he'd start a lively rumput out back of the house, barking at the big beasts, snapping at their heels and sending them scooting around the pasture like a couple of antelopes. It was fun for Teddy, but for the two cows there was more panic than pleasure in the proceedings.

Now we've introduced all the animal actors in the cast, it only remains to ring in the human ones—Annie—and the baby.

The baby was a neighbor's child—a little girl, three years old. She used to run away from home once in a while and come over to the Barretts' house for a visit.

A Runaway Baby's Adventurous Visit.

That's what she was doing on that September day in 1923—the day that Fate had set as the date for Annie's adventure.

Annie saw the little girl toddling across the field and went out to meet her. The baby was in the orchard when Annie caught up with her and took her hand. And just then around the corner of the house came Teddy, the dog, his tail up and his eyes full of mischief. He headed for the corner of the orchard where the two cows were quietly chewing their cuds, and in a minute there came a yapping from the corner of the pasture.

Annie looked toward the corner of the pasture and suddenly stopped dead in her tracks. The brown and white cow—the mean one—had broken into a run and was headed in her direction. Behind her was Teddy, snarling and snapping.

Trampling Hoofs Threaten Two Lives.

Says Annie: "I was so frightened I didn't know what to do. I picked up the baby and made for the door leading into the back porch. As I got to the step, I looked back. And there was the cow—there was Teddy—both of them foaming at the mouth—not three steps behind me, and still headed in my direction."

"I was so cornered that I couldn't go to right or left—only through the porch door. And I knew I could never make that. In another second that cow would be running full tilt into me."

"I was so frightened that I couldn't move—even if it would have done any good. I lived a hundred years in that one second—thought of all the things I ever did or planned to do—wondered if baby would be killed as well as I. The thought of the baby decided me. I would protect her as much as I could."

Annie Closes Her Eyes and Awaits the Inevitable.

"I had the baby in my arms and, doubling my body over her, crouched down on the ground. Then I shut my eyes and waited for the inevitable."

But the inevitable didn't happen. About everything else did, but not the inevitable. Annie felt a hoof graze her head, and then she heard a crash ring in front of her, accompanied by the raucous bawling of a frightened cow. Someone screamed inside the house, and Annie looked up at the darnedest sight she had ever seen in her life.

The cow was trying to crawl into the house—or at least, that's the way it looked.

She had jumped clean over Annie and the baby, right through the screen door of the porch, and landed half through a window leading into the house itself.

BOY, WHAT A CLOSE CALL FOR ANNIE!

Pickled Pine

Pickled pine is pine which has been subjected to a chemical treatment which ages it and gives to the wood surface something of the soft patina of old pine or "deal" from which the paint has been stripped. Pine was used for room interiors and furniture in England in the Eighteenth century, but it was never left in its natural state. For room panelling it was painted; for furniture—bookcases, cupboards and furniture—it was also painted, and for mirror frames, for which it was often used because it was easily carved, it was either painted or gilded.

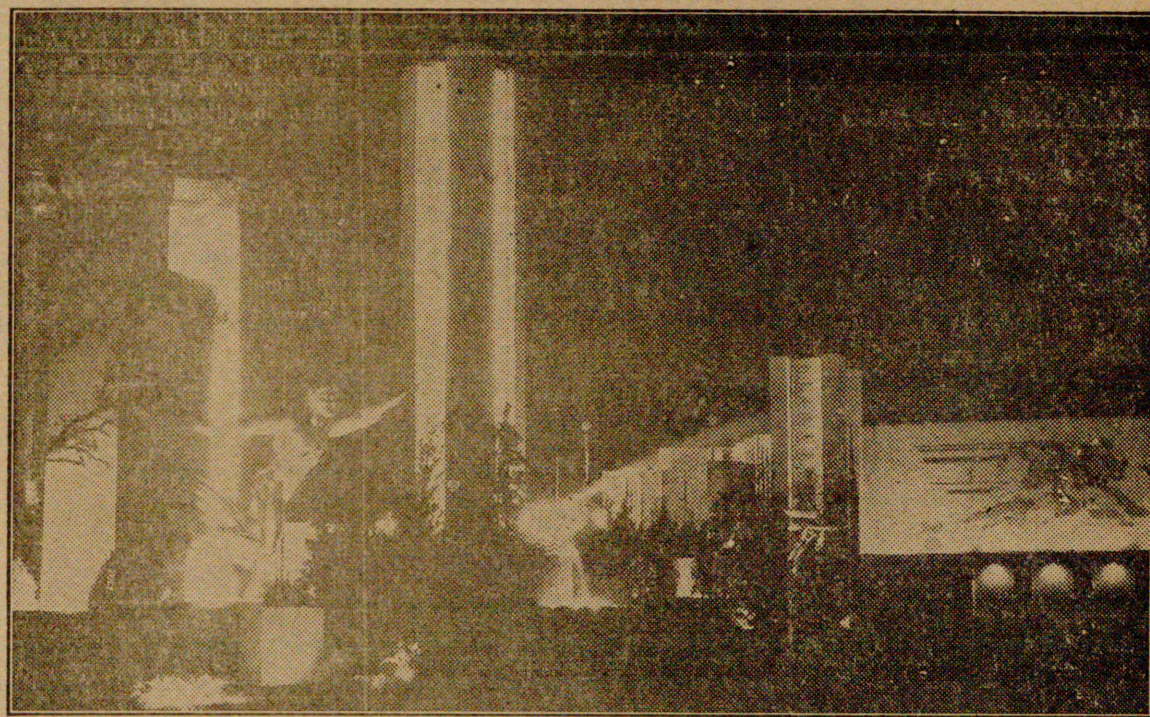

New Deal Recovery

In July, 1933, there were 3,908,068 individuals and families on relief throughout the United States. The New Deal brand of recovery had increased the number to 5,300,000 in March of 1936, according to the Federal Emergency Relief administration.

Costs More Than Food

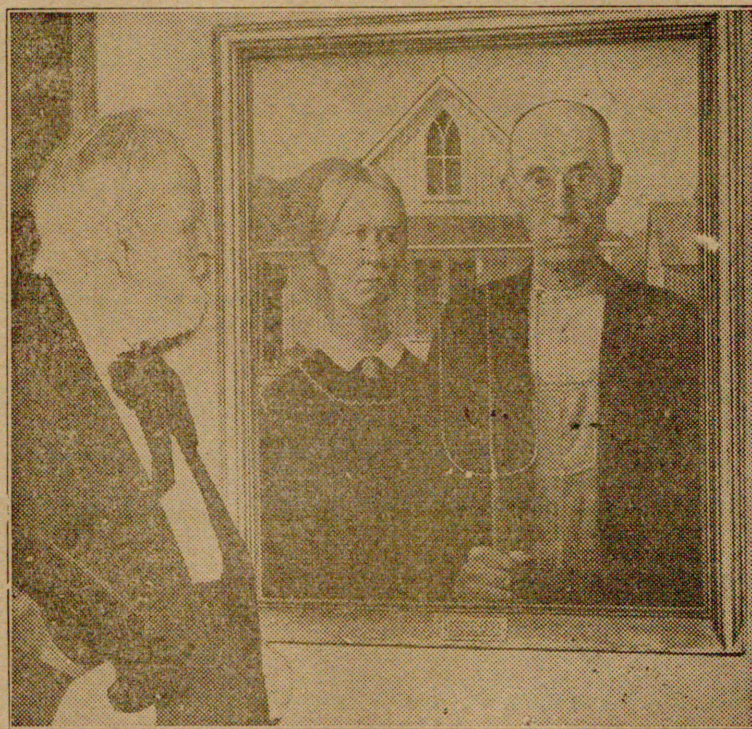

A recent compilation by the First National Bank of Boston shows that it costs Americans more to support their government than to eat. The total food bill to sustain what President Roosevelt calls a "third-class diet" is substantially less than the government spends.

Lights Flame in Radiant Beauty at Texas Exposition

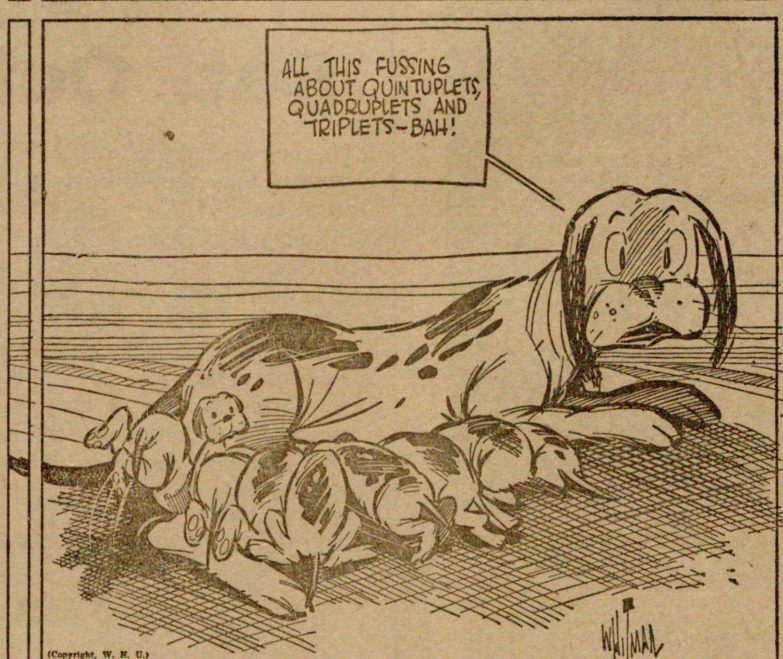

The lower wing of the Hall of Varied Industries, with its murals, statuary and lighting pylons of the Court of Honor, make an entrancing night picture at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas.

Markham Scores Modern Art

"It won't last," said Edwin C. Markham, 84-year-old poet, when he eyed Grant Wood's "American Gothic" at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas. He declared it belonged to a rapidly vanishing era and the author of "The Man With The Hoe" much preferred Millet's famous painting of the same name.

Jealousy

Wallace Brothers Support Landon

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—John P. Wallace (left) and his brother Dan (right), have announced their belief that the farmers of this country will best be served by the election of Gov. Alf M. Landon, with whom they are pictured here. Their brother, Henry C., was secretary of agriculture under President Harding, their nephew, Henry A., now holds the cabinet post under President Roosevelt, and the two brothers themselves have long fought for the farmer's rights as editors of agricultural publications. Gov. Landon's Des Moines speech, in which he stated his farm policy, won them over.

Lowden Tells Agreement With Landon on Farms

WATERLOO, IOWA.—"Gov. Landon believes that the great American market for the products of the soil, so far as we are able to produce them, should be preserved for the American farmer," Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, declared here.

"He urges," said the veteran soil conservation pioneer, "that the protective tariff, which is now effective only for those products of which we have no exportable surplus, should be made effective as to all products of the farm. World markets now determine the price of those products of which we have an exportable surplus, not only for that portion which is sold abroad, but for that portion which is consumed at home."

"Some of us have been contending for years for some method by which the tariff could be made effective as to that part which goes into the domestic market, so as to put the farm on the same level as the factory. And now the Republican platform and Gov. Landon are pledged to accomplish this very thing."

Mr. Lowden praised Gov. Landon for holding soil conservation "close to his heart."

"For many years," Mr. Lowden continued, "I have been advocating a national program of soil conservation along the lines now laid down in the Republican platform. I have suggested that the states would exempt from taxation that portion of lands which ought to be and were taken out of cultivation and put into legumes or other soil-conserving crops, and that the federal government, in the interest of all the people, should pay a sufficient bounty to enable the farmer to adopt this course."

"To meet the cost of this program a federal grant should be made to the states; the actual administration, however, removed from Washington, and resting in the states."

Mr. Lowden declared the farm family and the family size farm should be special objects of the nation's concern. "No one has shown a clearer appreciation of the need to preserve both than Gov. Landon," he said.

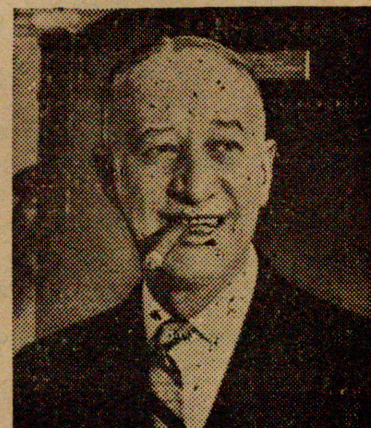

Imports Force Price Down

CHICAGO.—Imports of Canadian work horses under the new Roosevelt trade agreement have lowered the price of the American product $15 to $20 a head, according to the Republican National committee's farm division here. Nearly 13,000 head of Canadian horses were imported during the first six months of 1936, as compared with about 5,000 annually for 1935 and 1934.

World's Biggest Landlord

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Roosevelt administration has foreclosed on 43,870 homes and 30,257 farms to date through HOLC and FCA.

Smith Backs Landon

NEW YORK CITY.—"I firmly believe that the remedy for all the ills we are suffering from today is the election of Alfred M. Landon," Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York and Democratic candidate for President in 1928, said in a speech here. "I am an American before I am a Democrat, before I am a Republican, before I am anything," he declared.

"Good Citizenship Medals"

The National Society of the Sons of American Revolution which is represented in this district by Mr. Elder, is offering two "Good Citizenship Medals" to the boy and girl in the seventh grade through the tenth who are most worthy of such an honor.

The five qualities to be considered in making the award are:

1. Dependability
2. Cooperation
3. Leadership
4. Patriotism
5. Clean speech and habits.

One medal will be given to the girl in the 7, 8, 9, or 10th grade who has the best record for the year in the five qualities mentioned above—and one will be given to the boy who is the most outstanding in the qualities of dependability, leadership etc.

The medal will be awarded sometime in May 1937.

The winner will be determined in the following way: During the first week of May 1937 the students of grades 7, 8, 9, and 10 will select 5 girls and 5 boys whom they consider to be eligible for the medal. From these groups the final decisions will be made by the teachers.

The school wishes to thank Mr. Elder whose cooperation and effort has made this award possible.

U. S. FROWNS ON WAR

Constructive Foreign Policy of Roosevelt Discourages Europe's War Ardor

One of the paramount issues in the present political campaign is supplied by the threat of another European war, declares John Cudahy, American ambassador to Poland, who has just returned to this country on leave.

"Citizens should wake up to the dangers which threaten them from Europe," said Mr. Cudahy. "All other so-called political issues shrivel into insignificance compared with the question of what position the United States should take in the case of war in Europe."

"The American people are unanimous in their resolve that we must stay out of such war, regardless of the sacrifice. We shall not make other people's wars our wars."

"It is in response to this universal sentiment that the Roosevelt administration sponsored the present neutrality measure, which prohibits shipment of munitions or making of loans to belligerents."

"In Ethiopia and in Spain it has been made clear to the world that our government has adopted a policy of strict neutrality."

"Repeated declarations and statements have notified war-seekers in Europe of the policy the President will follow if and when another serious conflict comes. It has been emphasized that as far as this administration is concerned, peace comes before war prosperity."

"Continuance of this Roosevelt policy—this constructive foreign policy—during the next four years is vital. While this policy may not be popular in some European capitals, it has clarified the situation."

"Meanwhile President Roosevelt's tariff reciprocity plan is coming to be regarded as one of the best and most practical international contributions toward world peace, toward recovery, and toward the elimination of friction between nations."

"This situation is one of the reasons I am so urgently asking the American people to re-elect Mr. Roosevelt. His opponents have been strangely silent about these vital matters. But we know that Senator Borah is the logical candidate for Secretary of War in a Landon cabinet. And he has stated that he wants the United States to enforce its commercial neutral rights on the high seas even if such enforcement means war. Here is an issue of war. Another four years of Roosevelt means peace, for Roosevelt is the peace champion of the world today."

True Conservatism

Never has a nation made greater strides in safeguarding democracy than we during the past three years. Wise men have long known that in a changing world worthy institutions can be conserved only by adjusting them. A great essayist says: "The voice of great events is proclaiming to us—reform if you would preserve." ... I am that kind of a conservative because I am that kind of a liberal.—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

450 Hats Thrown In Ring

Claiming to be the largest single family unit in America, the Rashids of Lafayette, Ill., held the annual conclave a few days ago and voted to put their collective strength of 450 persons behind the Democratic candidate for President.

"We've decided to throw our hats into the Roosevelt ring," declared the family spokesman. "Every adult member of our family was separately questioned, and—without a single exception—they were for Roosevelt. Which certainly ought to prove something!"

One-Two-Three-Four

A newspaper in Missouri has been offering a series of prizes to its readers for the best appraisal of the accomplishments of the New Deal, arranged in order of their importance. The results, when tabulated, show that the consensus of opinion places the Administration's four-year achievements in the following order:

1. Restoration of banking.
2. Help to home owners and farm owners.
- 3.

Bayer Tablets
Dissolve Almost Instantly

In 2 seconds by stop watch, a genuine BAYER Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work. Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. What happens in this glass . . . happens in your stomach.

For Amazingly Quick Relief Get Genuine Bayer Aspirin

If you suffer from pains of neuritis what you want is quick relief.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets give quick relief, for one reason, because they dissolve or disintegrate almost instantly they touch moisture. (Note illustration above.)

Hence—when you take a real Bayer Aspirin tablet it starts to dissolve almost as quickly as you swallow it. And thus is ready to start working almost instantly. Headaches, neuralgia and neuritis pains start easing almost at once.

That's why millions never ask for aspirin by the name aspirin alone when they buy, but always say "BAYER ASPIRIN" and see that they get it.

Try it. You'll say it's marvelous.

Salute From the New to Old in Transportation

This remarkable photograph was obtained at Pendleton, Ore., as a high-speed twin-engine transport plane of United Air Lines soared over a mule-freighter bound for the Pendleton Round Up. The plane, with its 1100 "horses," has a top speed of 202 miles an hour; the freighter, pulled by 12 mules, does well to cover four miles an hour. Planes operating between the Pacific Northwest, Midwest, and East follow the old historic Oregon Trail formerly used by covered wagons, stage-coaches and freighters.

BEHOLD THE STORY by Thornton W. Burgess

BILLY MINK POSSESSES THE WANDERING FOOT

WHEN a person becomes uneasy and cannot settle in one place for any length of time, but wants to keep traveling, he is said to be possessed of the wandering foot. This means that he wants to wander about in search of new scenes and new adventures. To put it very plainly, he becomes a sort of tramp.

You remember that when Billy Mink discovered the traps along the Laughing Brook he decided that he would go visiting for a while. For some time he had felt a desire to go visiting. These traps gave him a real excuse for so doing. So Billy had turned his back on the Laughing Brook and started for another brook some distance away. He had not intended to go farther than this brook. But when he got there he found that the fishing was not as good as he had hoped it would be, so he decided to keep on moving until he found a place where food was plentiful, and he would be contented for a while.

"This Place Looks Good To Me," Said Billy.

Now, while Billy Mink is a great lover of the water and is almost as much at home in it as Jerry Muskrat, he is equally at home on land. In fact, Billy often wanders long distances from water. He believes in variety and there are times when he would rather hunt than fish. He is a very good hunter, as many a mouse and bird has found out too late.

So, leaving the brook where the fishing was poor, Billy started off across country for nowhere in particular. He is one of the most independent of all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. He never worries over where the next meal is coming from. He feels quite capable of taking care of himself wherever he may be. No one understands the art of hiding any better than does Billy Mink. He is quick as a flash, and the way he can disappear when apparently there is nothing to hide under is astonishing.

So Billy wandered about aimlessly just having a good time. He traveled mostly at night, though occasionally he became restless during the day and continued his journey then. In the Green Forest he hunted wood mice and grouse. In the open meadow land he hunted meadow mice. When he came to a brook he went fishing. So, at last, his wanderings brought him to a farmyard. There was a big barn there. Also there was a henhouse containing many hens. Between the henhouse and the barn was a big woodpile. At the sight of that woodpile Billy grinned. That was just the sort of a place he liked. You know he is so slim that he can slip through very small places, and he would be quite safe.

"This place looks good to me," said Billy, "I think I'll stay a while."

ANNABELLE'S ANSWERS By RAY THOMPSON

Dear Annabelle: MY DAUGHTER HAS JUST THROWN HER FIRST BOY FRIEND OVER. IS THIS A WISE MOVE? M.O.M.
Dear MOM—SURE! REMEMBER—YOUTH MUST HAVE ITS FLING!

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

WHEN buying meat see that it is of good color and well mottled with fat.

A fresh fish will be bright of eye and firm of flesh with the odor sweet.

Use nuts in a loaf to take the place of meat. They are highly nourishing, and are fine for all sorts of dishes.

If you have a neighbor who is using cake at about the same rate that your family does, why not exchange halves of cakes as two neighboring women do. Thus having a fresh half of cake with no work and no left-over to disturb the conscience.

When making mush for supper, prepare enough for frying for breakfast; everybody likes fried mush with sirup. Pour the hot mush into greased baking powder cans, kept for the purpose. When cold it slices without waste or crumbling.

When food scorches while cooking, set the dish in another of cold water—the steam rising from the food will dissipate the scorched flavor if it is not really burned.

To remove burned food from a dish without scratching, add soda to cold water and simmer until the food is softened.

Aluminum dishes which have been scraped will always have rough spots to catch food and cause burning. They should be rebuffed or they will always burn easily.

Lettuce, endive and such crisp green foods should be served at once after the dressing is added as they will readily. Keep lettuce well washed, in a thin bag of cheesecloth in the ice chest. It will be ready at a moment's notice to supply the salad.

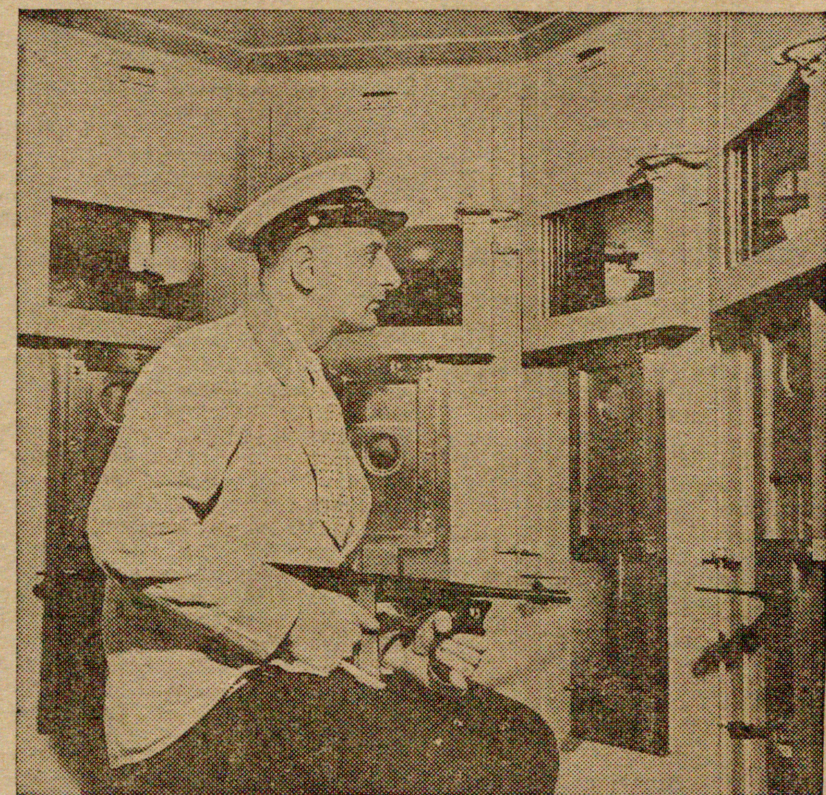

With raw fruits and vegetables so popular, did you ever try using fresh young turnips cut on the coarse grater or shredder, also young uncooked beets, served on lettuce with a snappy dressing, either french or boiled? Sprinkle with fresh grated coconut, add a bit of sugar and you will have one of the prettiest of salads and it will taste very good, too.

THE UPWARD LOOK

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

SEEING the rose, I saw a vine
About a mighty trunk entwined,
And found the trunk to be a pine.

And looking up, to see how high
The tree above me, then my eye
Beheld beyond the tree the sky.

And yet we think some holy deed
Of ours the world will never heed,
So small the matter, great the need.

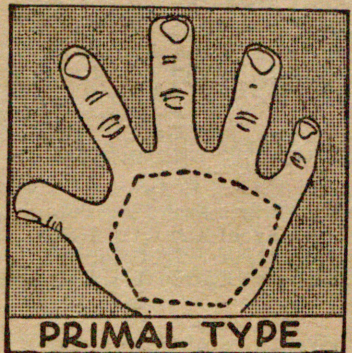

Yet I, who first beheld the rose,
The vine, and then the tree that grows,
Saw Heaven itself its gates unclose.

So has some little deed sufficed
To lift some soul by sin enticed,
Until it looked, and saw the Christ.

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis
© Public Ledger, Inc.

WHEN beginning an analysis of a hand to place its type, be sure to note all the characteristics which make it a distinct type. Note the general shape and conformation, whether short, thick-set, wide or narrow. Note the width of palm, the length and formation of fingers and thumb, whether they are straight, knotted or tapered. The first of the seven types of hands follows:

First. The Primal Type of Hand.

The outstanding characteristic of this type is its short, thick-set appearance. The fingers are stubby and rather clumsy looking. The thumb is extremely short, low set, heavy and often "clubbed" on the side opposite the nail. The nail joint is often abnormally short and wide.

The palm and underside portions of fingers of this type are always heavily fleshed and when partially folded become pillowed by broad, deep creases.

One would be quite safe in placing the possessor of a hand of true primal type as one who is apt to find more satisfaction in material affairs than in the spiritual, esthetic or sentimental aspects of life.

All things being equal, a primal type of hand indicates pretty surely that the occupation chosen by its owner should be of a kind that calls for manual dexterity rather than concentration or analysis.

A stiff thumb on the primal type of hand is positive indication of a stubborn and overbearing will that is apt to have its own way without counting the costs or the feelings of others. If, however, the thumb may be bent backward with little tension, there is equally positive indication that its owner is very much inclined toward indolence, irresponsibility and extravagance.

Value of Accuracy

I do not know that there is anything, except it be humility, which is so valuable as an incident of education as accuracy. And accuracy can be taught. Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed, for then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing GAS, indigestion and many restless, sleepless nights.

If you want REAL, QUICK RELIEF, take a liquid compound such as Adierika. Adierika contains SEVEN cathartic and carminative ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels. Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only.

Adierika's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old poisonous waste matter that may have caused GAS pains, sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months.

Adierika relieves stomach GAS at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. Take Adierika one-half hour before breakfast or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvelously refreshed. Leading Druggists.

Being master of all the mother tongues on earth doesn't enable a man to understand a woman's.

ILLINOIS
BREVITIES

Charles A. Walker, sixty-six, member of Rock Island county board of supervisors continuously since 1924, died at his home.

Baxter Fuller, ninety-two, a Civil war veteran who lived in Stark county, is dead. He enlisted in the 124th Illinois volunteer infantry.

Al Salome of Albany Park was elected president of the Illinois Moose association at the convention in East St. Louis, succeeding R. H. Schneider. Rockford was selected as the 1937 convention city. The date will be determined later.

The University of Illinois R.O.T.C. brigade, the largest unit of its kind in the United States, has an enrollment of 4,142 students, an increase of 523 over a year ago. Col. Fred R. Brown is commandant of the brigade.

Armed bandits kidnaped a filling station attendant in Rockford, robbed him of $38, and then left him bound, in a field near Davis Junction. The attendant, Sterling Anderson, seventeen, finally managed to release himself.

Edward L. Fox, forty-eight years old, died of a heart attack while picking corn on his farm at Channahon, ten miles southwest of Joliet. He had just returned home from paying a premium on his life insurance policy.

John F. Windett, seventy-four years old, a pioneer farmer of Kendall county, died in his home at Bristol. He was a lifelong resident of that town. Surviving are his widow, Ella, and a son and daughter. Mr. Windett was a brother of the late Dr. W. A. Windett, well known Aurora physician.

The Illinois Knights of Pythias Grand Lodge declined to place an assessment against members of the order to provide funds for the support of the Pythian home for the aged at Decatur. As a substitute measure the lodge, at the concluding session of its annual state convention in Springfield, decided to mortgage the home for $12,000.

Three men were burned, two of them fatally, when an explosion occurred while they were using a blow torch to melt tar in a barrel preparatory to repairing the roof of a garage at Farmersville. John Podschasky, sixty-six years old, and L. L. Orr, sixty-five, died. John Tischaus, thirty-one, suffered burns of the arms and legs.

Legrand Burrell, eighty-eight, a lifelong resident of Effingham, died in his home of apoplexy. He was one of the county's richest men. He had been mayor of Effingham, president of the First National bank, president of the board of education and president of the John Boos Manufacturing company. He was a wholesale lumber dealer.

Deputy Sheriff Sam Rotolo, twenty-six of Rockford, was killed when a skidding automobile struck him while directing traffic at the scene of an accident eight miles north of the city. A car driven by Kenneth Turell, thirty-one, Beloit, Wisconsin, skidded into the wreckage, bounded clear, and struck Rotolo. Turell said he could not stop because of the slippery pavement, wet from rain.

Patrick F. (Packey) McFarland, member of the Illinois athletic commission, died at his home in Joliet after a two months' illness, at the age of forty-eight years. His family physician, Dr. Arthur Fahrner, said death was due to a strange malady which caused high fevers and produced periodical attacks of coma. The former great lightweight boxer, whose weight had increased to nearly 200 pounds, lost about 50 pounds during his illness.

The Communist presidential and state ticket will not appear on the Illinois ballot. After a lengthy hearing, three justices of the Illinois Supreme court, sitting as a certifying board, found that the petition seeking a place on the ticket was insufficient. "The nominating petition," said the decision, "does not include the signatures of 200 qualified voters from at least 50 counties within this state as required for the nomination of independent candidates, and is therefore insufficient in law as a nominating petition."

More than $1,000,000 is tossed annually by Illinois coal mines, University of Illinois engineers said in announcing the results of investigations in the coal fields by Prof. Cloyd M. Smith and Prof. David R. Mitchell. This huge loss is in the form of wastes from the mines, which if recovered could produce thousands of dollars in additional income. More than 2,000,000 tons of waste is thrown away, it was reported. One-third of this can be recovered and sold for $1.50 a ton. Additional profits could be realized from the extraction of pyrite from the waste for the manufacture of sulphuric acid.

Robert Wadlow, eighteen-year-old Alton boy who is eight feet five and one-half inches tall, signed a contract for theatrical appearances at a salary of $300 a week, according to his father, Herbert Wadlow.

Michael Broman, sixty-five, and his wife, Lena, were found dead in the bedroom of their home in Dixon, victims of gas. A coffee pot which had boiled over was found over an open gas jet in the adjoining kitchen. The couple had been dead more than twenty-four hours when neighbors smelled the gas and called police.

Lesson for October 18

THE SPOKEN AND THE
WRITTEN WORD

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:1, 5-11; 1 Thessalonians 2:7-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword. Heb. 4:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When People Read the Bible.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Power of Jesus' Name.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How May I Win Others to Christ?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Evangelism and the Bible.

The persecution at Philippi served not to discourage Paul and Silas, but rather to send them forward into new territory with the gospel message. Passing through two cities they came to Thessalonica, then as now a city of considerable importance. After a successful though stormy ministry there they journeyed forty miles to Berea, where the Word was gladly received.

The portion of our lesson from the Book of Acts relates how the Word was preached and received in these two cities, and the excerpt from the letter which Paul later wrote to the Thessalonian church shows what manner of life the preacher sought to live among them.

I. Preaching the Word (Acts 17: 1, 5-8).

Paul's experience at Thessalonica presents an excellent illustration of 1. How the Word should be preached (vv. 1, 5-8).

This section is incomplete without verses 2-4, which are omitted from the printed portion but should be included in the study of the lesson. Notice four things concerning his preaching.

a. The place (v. 1). Paul went to the synagogue, not by chance or because it was a great religious holiday, but because it was his "custom." The synagogue was the center of Jewish worship, and there Paul met those who were ready to receive the Word of God.

Some Christians are content to remain comfortably in church and forget to go out into the highways and hedges, but there are others who have become so accustomed to going elsewhere that they neglect the opportunity for spiritual ministry in the church.

b. The method (vv. 2-3). "Reasoning from the Scriptures." No better method has ever been devised. It is God's method. Let us get back to exposition of the Scriptures—"opening" them to men and women, "alleging," or setting out in order the truth.

c. The subject (v. 3). He preached three fundamental doctrines—the atonement, the resurrection, and the deity of Christ. Scripture preaching will be doctrinal.

d. The result (vv. 4-8). Faithful preaching of God's Word brings one of two results in the hearts of men—they are either "persuaded" and converted, or they become angry and persecute. Those who rightly received the truth were glad to join with Paul; the others raised a hue and cry because Paul and Silas were turning "the world upside down." As a matter of fact the world was already wrong side up, and Paul sought to set it right.

It is still upside down in our day. Coming to Berea, we find Paul's experience there an illustration of 2. How the Word should be received (vv. 9-11).

Good hearers are as important as good preachers. How should the Word be received?

a. With readiness of mind (v. 11). This is a mark of nobility. The world regards the sophisticated doubter as the learned man, but he is not. Noble is the mind and heart that receives God's truth.

b. Carefully and thoughtfully (v. 11). There would be less error and folly in the pulpit if there were more intelligent Bible study in the pew. Do not assume that what some learned professor, or distinguished radio preacher says is true. Check his message by the Word.

In the final portion of our lesson Paul tells the Thessalonians that when he was with them he was concerned not only about preaching the Word, but also about

II. Living the Life (1 Thess. 2:7-12).

Paul did not contradict his preaching by his living. His was a 1. Sacrificial service (vv. 7-9).

The man who preaches for his own glory—or gain—is not a true preacher of the gospel.

2. Consistent example (vv. 10-12).

The minister of Christ must behave "holily, righteously, and unblamably" if his people are to "walk worthy of God."

Our Place in the World

Whatever the place allotted to us by Providence, that for us is the post of honor and duty. God estimates us not by the position we are in, but by the way in which we fill it.—Tyron Edwards.

Getting Rid of Misery

Half the misery of human life might be extinguished, would men alleviate the general curse they lie under, by mutual offices of compassion, benevolence, and humanity.—Addison.

Political History

ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE REPUBLICAN ELEPHANT

WHY is it that the Republican party, which has dominated the American government for 60 out of the 80 years it has been in existence, should be symbolized by a beast from the African jungles instead of some typical American animal? The answer is that a cartoonist once used a jungle scene to depict a political crisis and the figure of an elephant was so appropriate for what it was supposed to represent that its symbolism persisted long after the crisis itself had passed. The cartoonist was Thomas Nast of Harper's Weekly and the crisis was this:

In 1874 it seemed certain that President Grant was determined to run again in 1876. The principal opponent to the third term idea was James Gordon Bennett's Democratic newspaper, the New York Herald, which shrieked "Caesarism!" incessantly. Taking his tip how "An ass, having put on a lion's skin, roamed about the forest and amused himself by frightening all the foolish animals he met with in his wanderings," Nast drew a cartoon which he labelled "The Third Term Panic."

It showed the Herald as a donkey in a lion's skin, labelled "Caesarism," braying loudly and all the animals fleeing in alarm. The New York Tribune was represented as a giraffe, the World as an owl dropping an arithmetic book, the Times as a unicorn with a monocle. Near-by was a half-concealed fox labelled "Democratic party" but with features suggesting those of Samuel J. Tilden.

In the foreground was an elephant, labelled "The Republican Vote" on the verge of an abyss of "Chaos" barely hidden by broken planks marked "Inflation," "Repudiation," "Reform (Tammany)" and "Reconstruction." This cartoon was not only a thrust at the Herald but also a half-affectionate jab at Nast's own "huge but timorous" party, the Republicans.

Two weeks later Nast drew another cartoon showing an elephant tumbling down into the pit with the rotten planks and the rejoicing animals following it. This was called "Caught in a Trap—the Result of the Third Term Hoax." From that time on the elephant was the symbol of the Republican party.

THEY SING THE OLD SONGS

TO THE tune of "O, Susanna!" written by Stephen Foster many years ago, supporters of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas sang him into the Republican nomination at Cleveland and this banjo-tinkling tune, which cheered westward-bound emigrants in the golden "Days of '49," is being used to cheer eastward-bound (to the White House, they believe) Republican voters in the campaign "Days of '36." Will it drown out the cheerful strains of "Happy Days Are Here Again"? November 3 will answer that!

Not the least of the interest in the renewed singing of "O, Susanna!" is the few instances in which an old familiar song is revived for campaign purposes. Setting "campaign verses" to a familiar tune and using it for political purposes has always been a common practice. As far back as 1840 the Whigs sang a song in praise of Harrison to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne." In 1848, when the Free Soil party nominated Martin Van Buren, new words were written and sung to the tune of "Old Dan Tucker." The old familiar "Yankee Doodle," "Auld Lang Syne," "The Frog He Would a-Wooing Go" and "The Campbells' Races" were employed as the musical setting for songs in praise of Fremont in 1856.

Considering the fact that a Spanish-American War hero was a vice presidential candidate in 1900 it was only natural that "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" should become a Republican campaign song. But it wasn't until 1920 that an old song was revived and sung in its original form in support of a presidential candidate. In that year "The Sidewalks of New York," written in 1894 by Charles B. Lawlor and James W. Blake, was played by a band at the San Francisco Democratic convention when Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York was introduced and given a great ovation. It was his "musical trademark" when he became Candidate Smith in 1924 and Nominee Smith in 1928. Will the revival of "O, Susanna!" bring better luck to Gov. Alf Landon than the revival of "Sidewalks of New York" did to Gov. Al Smith? Again—"read the papers on November 4."

Course of Lightning

The main flash of lightning does not travel from a cloud to the earth, but in the opposite direction. The main flash is always preceded by a "leader," which acts as a sort of pathfinder or trail blazer. The "pathfinder" travels from the cloud to the earth, while the main flash starts upward from the earth at the point struck by the "leader." It follows exactly the same path back to the cloud. The length of the lightning bolt has been found to vary from 1.5 to 4.7 miles.

MOKENA

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Wm. Martin Post No. 725 of the V. F. W., surprised Mr. and Mrs. August Hentsch last Sunday, October 4th in honor of their forty-fifth wedding anniversary. Among those present Mrs. Conrad Bormet, Mokena and the following from Minooka: Mrs. Fred Hentsch, Mrs. Williamson and her mother Mrs. Shepley and Mrs. Schultz.

The Mokena PTA is calling special attention to the Halloween party which they will sponsor Oct. 27th. Cards and bunco will be played and a quilt will be awarded.

Mrs. Morry Larson will entertain at a bunco and card party at her home on Tuesday, Oct. 20th at 1:30 Central Standard Time.

Mrs. Weeber has been quite ill this week and is confined to bed. A number of Mokena Republicans attended a rally at Crete Wednesday night.

Word comes that Francis Moriarty who is connected with an oil company in Texas has been given an assignment by that company in Trinidad and he will soon sail for his new field of enterprise.

Rep. Rally At Green Garden Town Hall Oct. 20

A Republican rally will be held in the Green Garden town hall Tuesday evening October 20, at 8 o'clock. Speakers will be present who will speak on the national, state and county issues.

The county candidates will be present. Good entertaining features will also be on the program. Everybody is invited.

Repaving of Lincoln Highway Finished This Week

The repaving of Lincoln Highway was completed by the McCarthy Construction Co., from the Fitterer farm east of the Wolf road intersection to the bottom of the Owen Hill. The road building equipment which has been located at Mokena has been removed to Joliet. Just how soon the newly paved Wolf road and the newly paved Lincoln Highway section will be opened to traffic has not been announced yet.

Textile Engineering

Textile engineering is that branch of mechanical engineering that relates to the manufacture and operation of machines for making textiles, to the management of industrial plants engaged in textile making, and to the study of textiles.
